We'd like to take this moment to welcome you to the University of Florida. We're glad you're here and we're ready to help you with all your computing needs.

NERDC, the Northeast Regional Data Center, maintains the hardware and software used for most campus-wide administrative and end-user services, including GatorLink accounts (see below). NERDC provides a full-service computing, networking, and information services center shared across a broad spectrum of user groups, which realizes economies of scale and precludes unnecessary duplication. NERDC administers several different accounts: NERDC Departmental Accounts, Research Computing Initiative Accounts (RCI), and commercial and non-profit accounts. For more information about these accounts or to start an account, please contact NERDC at (352) 392-2061. For more information about NERDC, please see our home page at http://www.cns.ufl.edu.

At UF, all students, faculty, and staff can get a GatorLink account, which provides free e-mail, space for a Web page (expected by Fall 1999), and Internet dial-up time. For more information about GatorLink accounts, please see http://www.gatorlink.ufl.edu. From there, you can create your account, change your password, see your current usage, and more. The UF Center for Instructional and Research Computing Activities (CIRCA) administers GatorLink accounts. This means that the UF Computing Help Desk is your first contact for help with your account or other questions. The University of Florida's Computing Help Desk can be reached at (352) 392-HELP or via e-mail at helpdesk@ufl.edu. Their consultants can help you with setting up your computer to dial in from home, troubleshoot your GatorLink account, reset your password if you forget it, and much more.

CIRCA also administers UF Class Accounts, which instructors can get for classes that require NERDC userids. Faculty members who wish to set up class accounts should go to CIRCA in 520 CSE.
